

Promote Laboratory Sustainability

Communication & Education

Fill out our “New Employee Sustainability Orientation” sheet to educate new lab members about your sustainability practices.

Keep communication lines open between neighboring labs. Share supplies and combine orders!

Join a Green Team! A Green Team is a group committed to improving the environmental sustainability of their workplace (or any shared space), often involving representatives from various departments.

Make a commitment to save energy, promote sustainable food, conserve water, protect green space, increase recycling, and reduce reliance on polluting modes of transportation. Carpool or ride the bus!

Regularly discuss laboratory sustainability practices in staff meetings

Take the University of Washington Sustainability Pledge

Encourage your administrative office to apply for Green Office Certification - For details, visit green.washington.edu/green-office

Utilize a Catalyst shared space for inter-lab communication and spread the word about laboratory sustainability practices and green certifications!
